ESJC Appoints Foreman As Public Relations Officer

Guidance Counselor and former newspaperman, William F. Foreman, Jr., was named Public Relations Officer at Enterprise State Junior College, effective September 1, 1971, by B. A. Forrester, president of the college.

Foreman, who has filled the position at the junior college since Mrs. Jill Carter left last May, was officially transferred by President Forrester who said, "Mr. Foreman has been employed as a Guidance Counselor at the college since September 1968 and has been active as a public relations officer for student activities and publications, and has taught psychology. These qualifications along with his professional experience in journalism make him a natural for this position."

Foreman, who was reared in Montgomery graduated from Lanier High School in 1946, and attended the University of Georgia where he earned a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Journalism. He has worked as a newspaper reporter for United Press

Elba Plan First To Include Flood Zoning

The Elba City Council adopted a revised zoning ordinance July 20, 1971, based on a Flood Plain Study by the Corps of Engineers and became one of the first South Alabama communities to have land use controls in flood hazard areas.

The city is now eligible for National Flood Insurance and its future insurability and future development can be safely planned without interruption by the rampant forces of nature.

All this did not occur, overnight. After nearly two years' work, the Office of State Planning of the Alabama Development Office completed its Comprehensive Development Plan for Elba in June of this year.

Representing a first for the ADO, the Elba plan incorporated "flood zoning" into its total plan. Elba is

LEE DESCENDANTS HOLD REUNION

In the early days of this country, when Alabama was largely a wilderness, Charles Stephens Lee with his young wife, Elizabeth Broughton Lee, came from Virginia and settled on a large plantation in what is known as Lee Creek. They lived in a beautiful antebellum house and had a large slave colony near the house.

Even though their descendants were few compared with those of today, they lived a happy life together and reared a family of ten children-five boys and five girls - whose descendants are settled mostly in Alabama.

This couple, with some of their children and grandchildren are buried in the Shiloh Cemetery not far from the old home.

The annual reunions of the descendants of this pioneer couple have been held regularly since 1956.

Attending the 1971 Reunion were Mrs. Olin W. Slaggs, Madison, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Bryan, Tuscaloosa; Mr. and Mrs.

A REAL HELPING HAND

TO KEEP FAMILIES TOGETHER

In the current Congressional debate over what to do about welfare the one clear point is that the present system is not working.

The scope of the welfare crisis is shown in the explosion of the Aid for Dependent Children caseload. During 1970 the number of people receiving ADC assistance increased 32 percent while actual dollars paid out increased 36 percent. The growth was primarily reflected in family break-ups through separation, desertion, divorce or illegitimacy. Almost three-fourths of the children receiving ADC were in the "father absent" category.

The reform bill which passed the House has the virtue of providing work incentives, work training and requiring welfare recipients to accept certain responsibilities in order to obtain benefits. It provides hope for eventually reducing the number on welfare, because, unlike the present system, it does not encourage family breakups.

As the Ways & Means Committee stated: "Your committee's bill will establish a new welfare system, based on a sympathetic understanding of the needs of the helpless, and the conviction that all those who are capable of participating in the economy of this country should have the opportunity and the responsibility of doing so. It is a system designed to be fair and rational, the kind of system which recipients deserve and taxpayers can respect."

The Senate should act promptly, preserving the positive principles in the House version. While the President has asked that welfare reform be delayed for one year, it would be wise to have a new law on the books, ready to go.

The Silent Majority Speaks

Locally this newspaper has heard complaints about several things, but none of the complainers are willing for their name to be involved. These include: Unkept city cemetery; traffic congestion at the elementary school before 8 and 3; traffic problem at Dorsey as shifts change; filthy bathrooms at Elba High School; extra high cost of season football tickets for only four home games; George Wallace gets involved in too much-or George Wallace doesn't get involved enough; why doesn't Elba build a nice library; why doesn't Elba have more books in the library; parking meters; beer cans everywhere; high utilities; high taxes; no local shoe shop; can't get a service man; can't get a doctor; hospital cost too high; my monthly check was late; the swimming pool was closed when we wanted to swim; postage stamps are high and getting higher; can't find the district attorney; can't find a place to live.

The space below is for exclusive use of the "silent majority" and explains very clearly WHY this group has little influence on the trend of our nation as well as our local communities. A low rumble from each member of the "silent majority" would become a roar against the ears of the radicals and self-interest groups we hear everyday of the year.

A letter to the editor printed in this space with from an interested person could bring response from others interested in the same subject and from this union it is entirely possible the problem could be solved.

Being like most of the people in Elba, I had no idea what the effect of the Freeze would be on me personally or on this newspaper. Tuesday of this week one of the "Publishers' Auxiliary," a newspaperman's newspaper, arrived. The front page carried a long article about the freeze and newspapers saying that in the long run it would have a favorable impact on newspapers. "If the economy now improves as expected..." This makes sense. But even before this bit of news I was my opinion that the only thing wrong with President Nixon's action was he should have done it

Parents Know the Drug Threat

The Child You Save May Be Your Own

A MESSAGE FROM
JACK BRUNSON, MAYOR
City of Elba, Alabama

Most of us like to think that the drug threat is a problem in some far off big city, but the fact is that we have a drug threat in our City and County today. For this reason I obtained a series of articles for publication in an effort to communicate with as many parents as possible. This series, as the title implies, will be to give all parents in our community some of the latest information on drug abuse.

Today's Subject: What Parents Can Do About Drug Misuse

Except for speeding in a motor vehicle on the highways, Marijuana smoking is likely the most commonly committed crime in the nation. Americans who have experimented with Marijuana smoking at least once may number as many as 20 million persons. It is estimated by the Pentagon in Washington that perhaps as much as 30% of our troops in Vietnam have tried "pot," but most people making the estimates seem to agree that this is a conservative guess. Where surveys have been taken in larger universities the extent of Marijuana users tops 50% of the undergraduates and the figure is rising.

You'll hear the argument, coming most often from very young users of Marijuana, that it is harmless, has no long lasting effects, and it is not "habit forming." In one recent survey of 200 Marijuana smokers, it was found that 49% had already experimented with LSD, 47% had tried Amphetamines and 24% some form of the Barbiturates. In all of them, two-thirds had used other illegal drugs. If, in the research now underway, Marijuana is proved physically and at the same time medically safe (which is unlikely), isn't it obvious that there still is a definite guilt by association? It seems to form a pattern that the Marijuana user seldom remains ONLY a user of this drug.

Specialists concerned with drug misuse offer these constructive suggestions to parents in dealing with their children: 1. Keep your cool—a level head thinks logically, makes better decisions and generally acts more wisely.

2. Listen to what young people are really trying to tell you. Drugs are not the cause of drug use—at least not yet. There are hundreds of reasons why a child experiments with drugs. Find those potential reasons in your home—family relationships. Correct what might become a dangerous condition BEFORE it can cause serious trouble.

3. Get the facts concerning drugs and make certain you expose your youngsters to this fact in an atmosphere of sharing.

4. When setting discipline be very fair... but at the same time be very firm.

5. All experts in the field agree on this one thing of utmost importance: SET GOOD PARENTAL EXAMPLES! Parents who in effect say, "Do as I say, not as I do," stand little chance of influencing their children for true good.

While many people stand doing little more than hand-wringing, more and more parents groups across the country are setting up drug study meetings which show films on the subject. If your club or organization is interested in having such meetings, here are some suggested films to obtain:

"THE MIND BENDERS"—25 min. Subject: LSD and other hallucinogens. Write: National Medical Audiovisual Center (Annex), Chamblee, Ga., 30005.

"FBI SPECIAL REPORT"—20 min. Subject: Drug Abuse—BENDERS. Write same source as for "THE MIND BENDERS."

"FIGHT OR FLIGHT"—16 min. Available for purchase only. 16mm, sound and color. Write Mr. Quinn Tamm, International Association of Chiefs of Police, 1319 18th St., N.E., Washington, D.C., 20006.

"LSD"—25 min. on LSD and hallucinogenic drugs in general. Write: Professional Arts, Inc., P.O. Box 864, Universal City, Calif., 91608.

"DRUGS AND THE NERVOUS SYSTEM"—18 min. on how drugs affect many different parts of the body by their influence on the central nervous system. Write: Churchill Films, 662 N. Robertson Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90009.

"HIDE AND SEEK"—14 min. actual experiences of a teenager caught by the narcotic habit. Write: Center For Mass Communications, Columbia University Press, 1125 Amsterdam Ave., New York, N.Y., 10025.

It goes without saying that the more complete and basically factual information parents have concerning drugs, the more effective they can be in dealing with drug temptations, difficulties and discussions. Children and young people in general must know more than just one side of the story, since most of their information comes from others who favor drug experimentation, usually those in their own age group.

I had a talk with Mike Taylor Sunday morning and he said, Mike and his wife, Marjorie, spend hours every day working in their yard. Saturday morning after the Friday night ballgame their yard was a mess. Cars had parked in his yard (I had the same problem when we were his neighbors) and instead of driving off with a little bit of sanity, his uninvited visitors insisted on spinning their wheels and tearing up the grass sod. Of course, before they did that, they disposed of all the beer cans and other drink cans right in the well kept yard. Mike may have cooled down by now, but Sunday he was planning to put up a fence and stop some of the abuse.

I really don't know what it is all about but something happened Tuesday that rubbed across the grain with me. Apparently the Enterprise Rescue Squad had been hit by a car. A stick-baby toan Enterprise hospital in critical condition. Later it was determined that the baby was not to be influenced by consumer demand. This consumer demand must be satisfied to sell your merchandise and make that profit.

A more common practice is to use these sales full costs as a guide to establish a price "floor." Using this as a base, the merchant may add flexible mark-ups. This merchant keeps his "eyes and ears"

Information available from the Agency for International Development shows that between the years 1946 through 1969 the United States has given or "loaned" more than $138 billion to 143 foreign countries and regional organizations throughout the world.

As a matter of fact, our subsidies to foreign nations have enabled many of them to build industrial empires that undersell our own industries within their borders.

Some of these countries are able to dump their products in our markets at lower prices than goods manufactured by our own home industries.

Car dealers cruise parking lots looking for new vehicles that are easy to enter.

President Nixon's 10 percent tax on imports gives the textile industry a 10-day breathing spell, but it is by no means the answer to the overall problem facing the industry.

The import tax is temporary, as is the entire wage-price freeze package, and while textile people are glad to get the relief, they accept the action for what it is temporary.

Affected by the 10 percent tax are wool and synthetic fibers and products made from them. The duty is not imposed on cotton, or any other item now covered by quotas.

The import problem has been plaguing our textile industry for a long time, and action based on a single range objective is not going to solve this problem.

Japan, principal dumper of cheap textile goods on our markets, has refused to voluntarily place any realistic restrictions on her exports, while at the same time, protecting her export markets through the use of heavy protective tariffs.

Import quotas on all categories of textile items are needed and must be soon in coming if our important domestic textile industry is to be saved.

Even if quotas do come after the wage-price freeze and 10 percent import tax end, on plan that it will not help is the Avondale Mills plant in Birmingham.

The decision has been made to close the plant and cheap textile imports have forced the action. Aside from the serious loss of jobs, there is something particularly sad in the closing of the plant.

It is the original plant where the Avondale Mills, which was founded by Governor B. B. Comer, and it has been in continuous operation since 1897.

Avondale President Donald Comer, Jr., placed his finger squarely on the problem recently when he said, "As we continue to liquidate American jobs it is obvious that in a short time we will become a nation of paupers with no one to pick up the welfare check."

"There is no way can we pay ourselves wages at a rate many times that of people around the world, and at the same time afford the luxury of uncontrolled imports made with this cheap labor, without disastrous results."

Foreign textile wages would be illegal in this country. Such wages cut the manufacturing cost of foreign goods to the point

SSA.U. BUSINESS TIPS

Customer Relations

Auburn University School Of Business

How much is enough? Are you careful not to overprice an item and lose sales or underprice and lose dollars that should be added to profits? Effective pricing is one of your most important responsibilities as a businessman.

A "magic" formula? No, there isn't one, but a good understanding of pricing methods will help. The full cost method is used by many businessmen who believe that each product must cover all the costs of that particular product. The purchase price is not the only cost remember labor, materials, overhead, and, important to you, a predetermined percentage for profit. Yet, this adding of a rigid "standard" mark-up is the exception rather than the rule. Such a rigid mark-up has been found to not be influenced by consumer demand. This consumer demand must be satisfied to sell your merchandise and make that profit.

When you are determining a specific pricing policy, consider these factors upon all business. Often, prices should vary with economic conditions. A trend toward credit buying, for example, may reflect a willingness to purchase higher priced sales volume, carry an expensive line, consider honoring bank charge cards. These charge cards guarantee payment and reduce bookkeeping expenses. Entice customers into your store with break-even items. Then use sales at greater mark-ups to balance break-even items. These are called complimentary sales.

A producer's life cycle is important. New, unique items can demand a high price and then with market penetration the price will drop with competition. Remember the Hula-Hoop craze several years ago?

Originally, merchants charged a high price for their risk and in a short time, competition reduced the price to 99¢.

A prime determinant of your pricing policy should be your present sales volume and which low prices today will decide whether or not you are in business five years from now. The store's basic pricing should reflect the "image" it is trying to create. Consumer services and credit affect price policies.

But once your price trend toward credit buying, for example, may reflect a willingness to purchase higher priced sales volume, carry an expensive line, consider honoring bank charge cards. These char-

In True Light

Nation hear witness to the viciousness of such competition which has been developed through, partly our own tax dollars.

We find that many of these countries which have been receiving our aid have been trading freely with the Communist world and are prospering. We find that nations which have been happy to take our help are now forcing us to abandon important military positions, confiscate private American industries within their borders, and threatening to throw aside American friendship for the sake of the money of the Communist world.

It is not ironic that while we give away more than $138 billion in less than 25 years to foreign countries, the total indebtedness of all the State and local governments is only $132 billion.

The indebtedness results from money borrowed to provide schools and libraries, hospitals and clinics, water and sewerage systems, streets and highways, and other services required for the well-being of the American people, whereas the $138 billion represents money we have dumped overseas in aid of foreign governments.

I have said before and I say again that it is time for us to see foreign aid in its true light. Instead of wasting our fast depleted resources, we need to devote our energies, our time and our tax dollars to insure the security and well-being of the American people, and certainly that is one of the goals that I have for my actions as your U.S. Senator.

Textile Industry Needs Permanent Solution

Representative George Andrews

where American-made textiles cannot compete in a completely unrestricted trade situation.

Employment in the textile and apparel industry in this country dropped by 10,000 jobs last month, and by some 100,000 jobs last year.

President Nixon's important tax cannot take the place of import quotas. The problem facing the industry will not be gone when the freeze is lifted.

Spokesmen for the American Textile Manufacturers Institute gave President Nixon some good advice when they said, "We hope the President's emergency action on the overall problem will be followed by the kind of more permanent measure which will provide jobs, renew confidence and insure stability in the textile industry for future years."

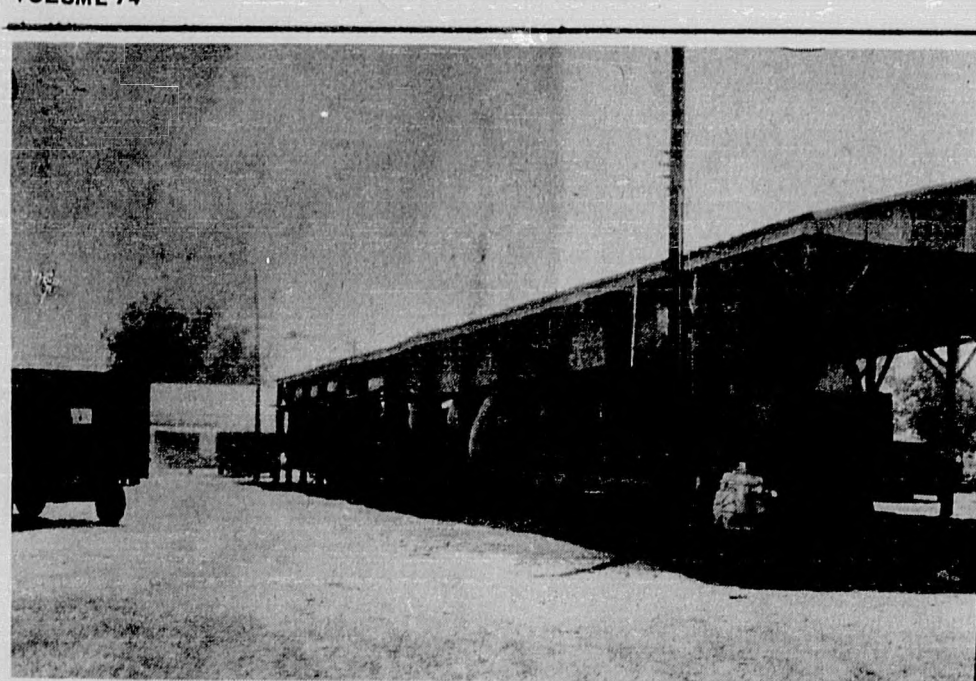

Most consumers are directly affected by the Act. Any person or organization who extends or arranges credit for which a finance charge is or may be payable or which is repayable in more than four installments they are paying for credit and can compare costs with those of other credit sources.

The Truth-In-Lending Act and Regulation Z (1) spell out the disclosures that those who extend consumer credit must make to their customers, (2) set standards for advertising credit terms and (3) permit a customer to cancel some types of credit arrangements.

The finance charge and the annual percentage rate of credit are the two most important disclosures required by this regulation. As defined by the Regulation, the maximum or minimum finance charge for credit, is specifically what factors the consumer's finance charge is the total

PEANUT CROP GOOD: All reports from area farms and farm associated people indicate this region is in for a peanut bonanza. The acres are producing a record yield, the peanuts are receiving record high grades and the prices average $300 per ton.

Local peanut merchant, Jake Morrow, states that this year will be the third record breaking year in a row for Coffee County peanut farmers. He verified the grades are real good and his drying wagons are loaded to capacity 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Morrow predicts he will need another warehouse to store all the peanuts brought in this fall.

Some 17 million cans were returned to the reclamation centers during the April-June quarter, compared to 73 million cans turned in the first quarter-year. Close to $1 million was paid out in the six month period.

If collections for the rest of the year continue at the present rate, total 1971 collections would amount to more than $15 million cans cleaned up off the ground or separated out of trash.

Concerned Concerns Gave Billions in 1968

Philanthropic contributions by American corporations totaled $1,005 billion in 1968, a 21 per cent increase over the previous year, the Association of Fund-Raising Councils reports.

The AFRC, a non-profit organization of fund raising counseling firms, said that these latest available estimates were based on an Internal Revenue Service sample survey of 1,623,000 corporate returns.

Possible Law Suits Are Good Reason For Knowing About Credit Protection Act

Should you be concerned about the provisions of the 1969 Consumer Credit Protection Act?

The possible results of your failure to comply with this regulation is sufficient reason for apprehension. If you fail to make disclosure as required under this legislation, your customer may sue you for twice the amount of the finance charge plus court costs and attorney's fees. In addition, if you willfully or knowingly disobey the law or Regulation Z and are convicted, you could be fined up to $5,000 or be imprisoned for one year, or both.

these charges and show them to your customer. The statement of credit costs, as shown to the customer must be clearly typed or written, stating the dollars and cents total and the annual percentage rate. The words "finance charge" and "annual percentage rate" must stand out clearly, along with their respective figures.

Figuring out the annual percentage rate of the cost of credit on individual transactions can be very complex in some instances. The computation will vary depending upon whether the credit is "open" or "closed-end." To assist you, The Federal Reserve Board has published a booklet, Annual Percentage Rate Tables, Volume I,

Operation Santa

In Full Swing

Ft. Rucker's Operation Santa Claus 1971 is under way. Through this project, Fort Rucker, in cooperation with surrounding communities of the Wiregrass, repairs old and broken toys for contribution to needy children and orphanages in the area.

Cooperating with the soldiers in this area is the Elba Police Department under the direction of Chief Jack Smart. Annually the policemen collect these toys from local families who no longer have any use for them and deliver them to the military for repair. As Christmas time nears, the local police take a truck to the base and load it with toys for the area children. Names are submitted to the department largely by the County welfare office.

Chief Smart announced this week that his department is now receiving toys for Operation Santa and urges families planning to contribute to do so soon.

Active sportsman, Johnny Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin and a graduate of Elba High School, will write a weekly column on the sports world. Martin is active in a wide range of sports and interests in almost all types of sports. He is presently a student at Troy State University and worked during the past summer teaching golf at the Elba Country Club. Martin has starred in football, basketball, baseball, track and golf. He hunts, fishes and swims. This first column of all football and for the next few weeks will probably discuss some golf along and work in the hunting and fishing. As basketball season arrives, his subject will become basketball.

Million Dollars Paid For Aluminum Cans

All-aluminum cans flowed into aluminum producer recycling centers across the nation twice as rapidly during the second quarter of 1971 as during the first quarter.

Local aluminum canners are producing a record yield, the cans are receiving record high grades and the prices average $300 per ton.

Local peanut merchant, Jake Morrow, states that this year will be the third record breaking year in a row for Coffee County peanut farmers.
